

Faculty Position in Earth Sciences at National Taiwan Normal University

The Department of Earth Sciences at National Taiwan Normal University invites applications for up to two faculty positions at any rank (assistant, associate, or full professor) in oceanography. Candidates in all the oceanography related fields, including, but not limited to physical oceanography, chemical oceanography, marine geology, or marine biology, are welcome.

The appointees should have a demonstrated record in research and a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching. It is expected that the candidate will have a Ph.D. in oceanography at the time of the appointment with preference given to those with post-doctoral experience and whose interests, abilities, and experience enhance our existing programs.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a current CV, a publication list, a description of how your future research and teaching will contribute to the overall goals of the department, a (photo) copy of doctorate diploma, and arrange three letters of reference, at the address given below before 03/21/2021.
